Disasters to Warships in 1893.

The last was not a lucky year for ships of war. Seven war ships were lost during the 12 months of 1893. Of these only one was destroyed in actual war. This was the Javary, an iron clad monitor of 3600 tons displacement, which carried the flag of the rebel Admiral Mello, and was sunk on the 27th of November last by the guns of the forts of Rio Janeiro. Russia has to deplore the loss of an armored cruiser, the Witatz, and of the monitor Russalka. The first carrying ten 6 inch guns and of 2500 tons, was run into and sunk on the 26th of April, in the bay of Lazzaro, by the Brazilian school ship Admiral Barroso. The Barroso, a steam sloop, was on a mission to the Red Sea, after its passage through the Suez Canal. The monitor Russalka made a trip in company with the gunboat Tuca, from Revel to Helsinki on the 29th of September, and went down in a storm with all on board, numbering 178 persons. The records of marine disasters show that in the course of 1893 one hundred ships of war have been lost in the gulf of Finland.

France lost this year La Bourdonnais, a cruiser of the first rank, in a storm off the coast of Madagascar. The ship was abandoned by the crew, of whom 23 were lost. La Bourdonnais is the first French ship of war that has been lost since 1870. The greatest casualty of the year is that of the Victoria, the flagship of the British Mediterranean fleet, on the coast of Tunis, on the 23d of June. Struck by the armored ship Camperdown, the Victoria went to the bottom with all on board, numbering 10,470 tons. A new Victoria of greater magnitude by 4000 tons is in course of construction. The seventh loss is that of the Alexander Petron, belonging to Hayti. It was a new steel ship of small tonnage, built in Havre, and sank in a way that has never been explained, with a crew of 80 men, of whom one only was saved. Though no ships of the American navy have been lost this year there have been two or three narrow escapes. By keeping snugly in harbor some of the most magnificent modern ships of war find their only safety.
